'BALLYHOO' WILL STILL BAWL OUT BALL GAME TALK

Hollinger Says Spieler Will Be on Job Saturday and Will Raise His Voice

Relative to the "ballyhoo" for the ball game that brought forth complaints from the vicinity of King and Fort streets, Ben Hollinger says that the work is to go on. He modestly adds that the man's voice does not make any more noise than a force of men erecting an iron frame of a new building. The police department expresses the belief that it is hardly a common nuisance. They further say that if the megaphone horn should be wobbled a little it might have a soothing effect on the nerves of listeners.

"I will send a man out on the corner of King and Fort streets next Saturday afternoon," said Ben Hollinger today. "He will have his megaphone and will be asked to shout in a loud voice all about the ball game at the park. You watch him. He will be out there all right."

"I had a talk with A. M. Brown, the city attorney, and after that the men with the megaphone performed. I naturally was peeved when someone objected to the megaphone man, as he doesn't make any more noise than the iron workers putting up a new building."

Despite the efforts of the ballyhoo man, a number of the fans failed to heed his warning, and as a result the stand at Athletic Park on Saturday afternoon was not packed. The Santa Clara team played good ball, but on Sunday with a large crowd they fell down. Hollinger says that the megaphone man is going to be on the job despite efforts to throw him out.

Deputy Sheriff Julius W. Asch laughed when the ballyhoo matter was mentioned to him today.

"I don't think announcing is a common nuisance," said the deputy, "and in the states it is quite ordinary to see the speakers on the streets with their megaphones."

The deputy was of the opinion, however, that the ballyhoo boy might not continually point his horn in the direction of the county attorney's office and could possibly "wobble it about a bit."

Prosecuting Attorney Chillingworth wisely wagged his head when approached on the subject.

"If you want to know whether it is a nuisance or not, ask Christy," he said. "He'll tell you quick enough."

AALA PARK WILL BE REOPENED IN PART THIS WEEK

Supervisor Hollinger and Supt. of Parks Tell What Has Been Accomplished

Aala park, closed since shortly after the Carnival, will be reopened within a few days. Last week A. K. Vierra, superintendent of parks, declared that it was nearly ready to serve the public again and would probably be opened Saturday, July 15. Today he said it might be opened by the middle of the week.

Supervisor Ben Hollinger, chairman of the park committee, asked why it had been closed so long replied, "Vierra has but 16 prisoners with which to keep all of the parks in the city in condition. He can't make them work any harder than they want to, and they don't want to work very hard. It takes them a week to clean up a small park. The department has no funds with which to hire labor."

Vierra has turned the sod over, planted grass, cut it several times and given it a chance to get a hardy growth. Hedges have been planted, location of electric light poles changed, holes filled in, a driveway built, walks laid out, trees planted, the bandstand painted and a new baseball diamond laid out.

"The lower part of the park will be opened this week. The upper part will be closed for another week or so, or until the playground apparatus can be installed."

JULY 8.
GERMAN HEADQUARTERS, July 8.—On both sides of the Somme, German troops with courage and tenacity caused the enemy complete de- ception. Numerous attacks were bloodily repulsed again and again. The British have an infinity of dead before the sectors of Ovillers, Contalmaison and Bacontine Grand, and the dead French before Blachier and Soyocourt proves the masses engaged in the enemy's attacks as well as terrible effect of our artillery, machine guns and infantry fire.

East of Meuse the enemy continues to sacrifice soldiers in strong but fruitless attacks against Froideterre, where they obtained one yard of terrain. Several hundred were prisoners. Feebler attacks against high battery in Damloup were easily repulsed.

On west front spirited artillery patrol activity takes place. Attacks of about one French company in Priest forest failed.

Hindenberg's army: Russian attacks south of Narocz Lake were repulsed. Two officers and 210 men were prisoners. Several places feebler attacks were repulsed.

Prince Leopold's army: Since yesterday repeated efforts of strong Russian forces against our front southeast of Gorodishche and further on both sides of the Garovo failed completely. Thousands of dead enemies before our defenses besides a considerable number of prisoners. New combats engaged.

Linsingen's army: Southwest of Luck we obtained advantages. Bothmer's army: Northwest of Bucaraz, Russian enterprises failed. Balkan sector: Artillery duels without special importance between Vardar and Dofiran Lake are going on.
